

Moving From The United States To Canada

WITH UNITED VAN LINES

Our goal: To make your relocation process as uncomplicated as possible, by following all procedures and providing the required documentation to Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA).

- Although we can offer expertise in cross-border customs procedures, enforcement by Customs Authorities is beyond our control.
- It is important that you also understand your responsibilities and the documentation requirements. We encourage you to contact the government agencies listed at the end of this brochure for more detailed information.

Declaring your Household Goods and Personal Effects

- When entering Canada — even if you have no household goods and personal effects with you at the time of entry — you must provide a list of your household goods “to follow” to the CBSA Officer at your first point of arrival in Canada.
- Based on the list of household effects you provide, the CBSA Officer will complete a B4 form called the Personal Effects Accounting Document for you, assign a file number to it and give you a copy of the completed form as a receipt. This receipt is called a B15 form, also referred to as the Casual Goods Accounting Document.
- You will need to present your copy of the form to claim free importation of your unaccompanied goods when they arrive (for any returning residents or seasonal residents).

Note: “Goods to follow” may be subject to duties/taxes and import restrictions before you can complete importing them into Canada.

- To expedite the process, complete a B4 form in advance and present it to the CBSA Officer when you first arrive in Canada.

What to Expect During the Customs Clearance Process

- Household goods and personal effects entering Canada do not clear customs at the border; they clear at the closest Canada Customs office to your destination address.
- Your household goods and personal effects will enter Canada “in bond.”
- Your customs clearance appointment can only occur once the Van Operator has formally crossed the border and your shipment is in Canada at the destination city.
- Once the Van Operator arrives in Canada, he or she will call you in advance to set up a customs clearance date, time and advise the location.
- By Canadian law, you (the shipper) must personally be present for your appointment with the CBSA Officer. Clearing your shipment is typically a simple procedure as long as you have all your documentation in order.

CONTAINER SHIPMENTS

If you have container shipments, you will need to visit the Canada Customs office closest to your destination agent to have your shipment released. This may be some distance from your home. Getting to the Customs office is your own responsibility, and no one from the moving company will be there.

Not sure whether you have a container shipment? Ask your move coordinator.

- Either your Move Coordinator or the Van Operator will contact you to proceed with clearance.
- On the day of your customs clearance appointment, please ensure you bring your passport and all the documentation that will support your status in Canada. Please refer to the list below for required documentation.

NOTE: If your shipment is selected by CBSA for inspection, your customs clearance process may take longer. You may incur additional charges for storage at a bonded warehouse and extra labor required to unload the shipment for inspection. These additional procedures can add significant amounts to the cost of your move. Check with your sales representative for details.
